

“Finger Lakes Selections”

The Inn on the Lake features one of the area’s largest selections of wines from this region.

Ice Age glaciers carved the narrow, deep Finger Lakes, creating ideal conditions for growing grapes. The moving ice masses deposited a shallow layer of topsoil on sloping shale beds above the lakes, providing drainage crucial for grape growing.

The deep lakes retain their summer warmth in the winter and their winter cold in the spring.

Today, about 80% of the state’s wine is made here and the area is still home to New York’s largest wineries. The Finger Lakes was also the birthplace of the “vinifera revolution” more than 30 years ago.

It was in the vineyards surrounding Keuka Lake that Charles Fournier and Dr. Konstantin Frank collaborated on their first vinifera vintages and proved to skeptics that old-world grapes could indeed thrive in the East and produce world class wines. Since then, the vinifera revolution has spread not only to New York’s other wine regions, but also throughout the Eastern United States.

Of all New York’s viticultural areas, the Finger Lakes are probably the most diverse in terms of its wine production – producing all types of wines from all types of grapes. The area is recognized by many wine publications as having the most important vineyards for wine production in the Eastern United States.

To our valued guests:

We have noted vintages to assist you in your selection. Due to the tremendous movement of fine wines throughout the marketplace, the vintages are in constant change. Please consult with your server if you have any questions; we appreciate your understanding.

Thank You,
The Management
